

brunner ::

mudra

BRUNNER X DIEZ OFFICE

CONTENTS

Brunner x Diez Office

04

Our motivation & vision

mudra in detail

09

Materials & variants

Impressions

17

Inspiration and detailed views

01

Brunner x Diez Office

Born out of conviction.

After three years of development, Brunner and Diez Office are proud to present mudra, a universal chair that puts a modern spin on the technical and ecological possibilities of shaped wood technology.

This project has required an in-depth understanding of functionality and extremely high design standards combined with specific expertise surrounding production and a willingness to push the boundaries.

Brunner has found the perfect partner to work with on the next generation of the shell chair, with Stefan Diez and his team renowned for their design excellence and depth.

Brunner and Diez Office have a lot in common, including a passion for innovative ways of working with materials, a need for perfection, attention to detail and an unwillingness to compromise on functionality and iconic design.

The result of this strong partnership is a brilliantly versatile chair that makes a clear design statement.

"I've been following Stefan Diez's work for a while now and I've always been impressed by his attention to detail and the depth with which he explores structures and materials."

DR. MARC BRUNNER

"When we were taking the lead to start with, Marc Brunner always had the imagination needed to stick with us and follow our train of thought."

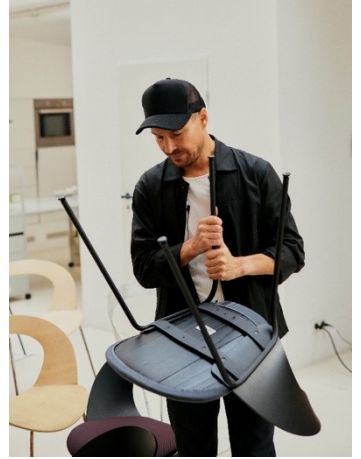

STEFAN DIEZ

The universal stackable chair from the mudra range is ideal for the office, cafeteria or home, with flexible frame and upholstery options available.

The combination of organic seat shell and structured frame is a thread running through the history of design that mudra picks up and continues with the aid of state-of-the-art shaped wood technology.

02

mudra in detail.

The next generation of the shell chair.

Innovative shell chair combining state-of-the-art 3D shaped wood technology and high-quality materials.

- Original organic design with open loop-shaped back
- Seat and back made from shaped wood, available in oak or walnut
- Stackable four-legged steel frame, coated or chromed
- Also available with a wooden frame for a home-like character
- All materials can be replaced, separated and sorted
- Suitable for a variety of uses in cafeterias, restaurants, offices as well as lounges and seminar areas

Iconic. High-tech. Sustainable.

The open loop-shaped back is the signature mudra design element, providing elegant back support without restricting anyone to a single seated position. Freedom of movement is key to this light and flexible design.

The shell and frame are designed so that every individual component can be removed and replaced. And the raw materials were chosen because they are sustainable and recyclable.

"Far from flat, the open loop-shaped back really does have a three-dimensional design."

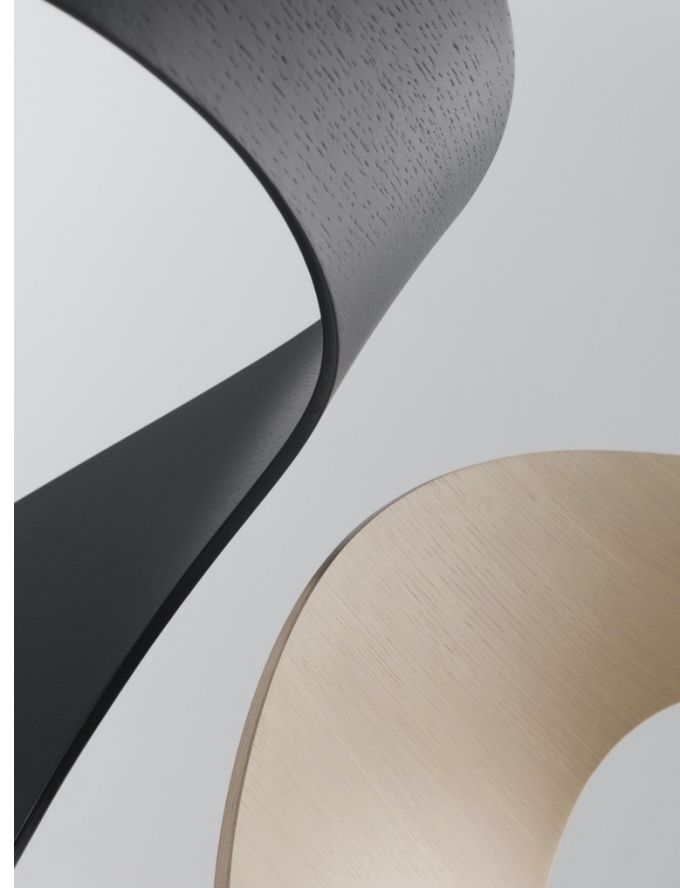

Dr. Marc Brunner

Innovative 3D shaped wood technology.

The unique extreme shaping of the seat shell reflects the innovation at the heart of the mudra production process.

The result is an attractive, high-end design centred around premium materials.

You can't go wrong with this stackable all-rounder.

The stackable steel frame is perfectly at home in a cafeteria, canteen or restaurant. But mudra also works well in seminar environments and makes quite an impression in a crowd.

A modern solution offering flexibility and mobility, the mudra chair can be stacked and stored away without taking up too much space.

Elegant but comfortable.

The seat shell can also be combined with an oak four-legged frame. The wooden frame adds a homely touch to the seat shell and makes the chair even more versatile.

mudra oozes quiet confidence in any version and any setting.

Flexible design.

The mudra range is also available with seat upholstery. Since the cushion is not glued down, it can still be removed from the seat shell at any time. What more could you want from a sustainable product designed to last?

The cover comes in a range of colourful fabrics and leathers.

All versions at a glance.

03

Impressions.

Brunner lives for furniture that makes new things possible.

brunner-group.com